Bio: Jeff was born in Taipei and grew up in three distinctively different environments between Taipei City, southern California, and southern Oregon. His upbringing in these drastically different surroundings allows him to make connections and strike up friendships easily with people from all sorts of backgrounds. By extension, Jeff has a proven track record of partnering and leading teams consisted of different personalities, experiences, backgrounds, and other dimensions of diversity.

Jeff went to 3 different high schools in Taipei, LA, and Ashland (OR), before graduating from Southern Oregon University with honors (Magna Cum Laude). He earned two Bachelor of Science degrees in Accounting and Computer Information Science from Southern Oregon University.

After college Jeff went on to work as a Technology Risk Consultant for Arthur Andersen and KPMG, both of which are world leading CPA and Consulting firms. The 5-year consulting career gave him a broad range of experiences working with global companies from all industries, sizes, and operating complexities. NIKE successfully recruited Jeff to join the swoosh family in 2004 to help develop and implement a Sarbanes-Oxley Technology compliance strategy. 7 different jobs later (all within NIKE) Jeff is now responsible for leading CA+RM's Integrated Marketplace and Global Geographies division, focusing on innovating and developing the latest methods to manage NIKE's dynamic enterprise risk universe.

Jeff has a strong passion for giving back to the community and volunteering, which is evident in his extensive background and experiences across organizations and platforms in the Taiwanese North American community. Ever since he came across the WTCCJC in 2013 he has been actively involved and served key leadership roles at both the WTCCJC and TJCCNA.
